Connect with an operator

Consultation

The AI Sales Manager quickly and professionally answers the client's questions, offers services or products, and informs them about the company's promotions.

Collection of Contact Information

The AI Sales Manager collects and verifies the client's contact details. It creates the impression of interacting with a real person, but the client can request to switch to a human operator at any time.

Appointment Scheduling

The AI Sales Manager checks the availability of open slots in your schedule and books an appointment for the client at their preferred time.

New client notification

Your employees—call center agents or sales representatives—receive immediate notifications on the platform and can set up alerts for new clients through the Telegram bot. The operator can either join the chat right away or wait until the client requests to speak with an operator.

CRM

Connect your sales managers like operators

The client's contact information is automatically added to the customer database. The data can be integrated with any CRM system.

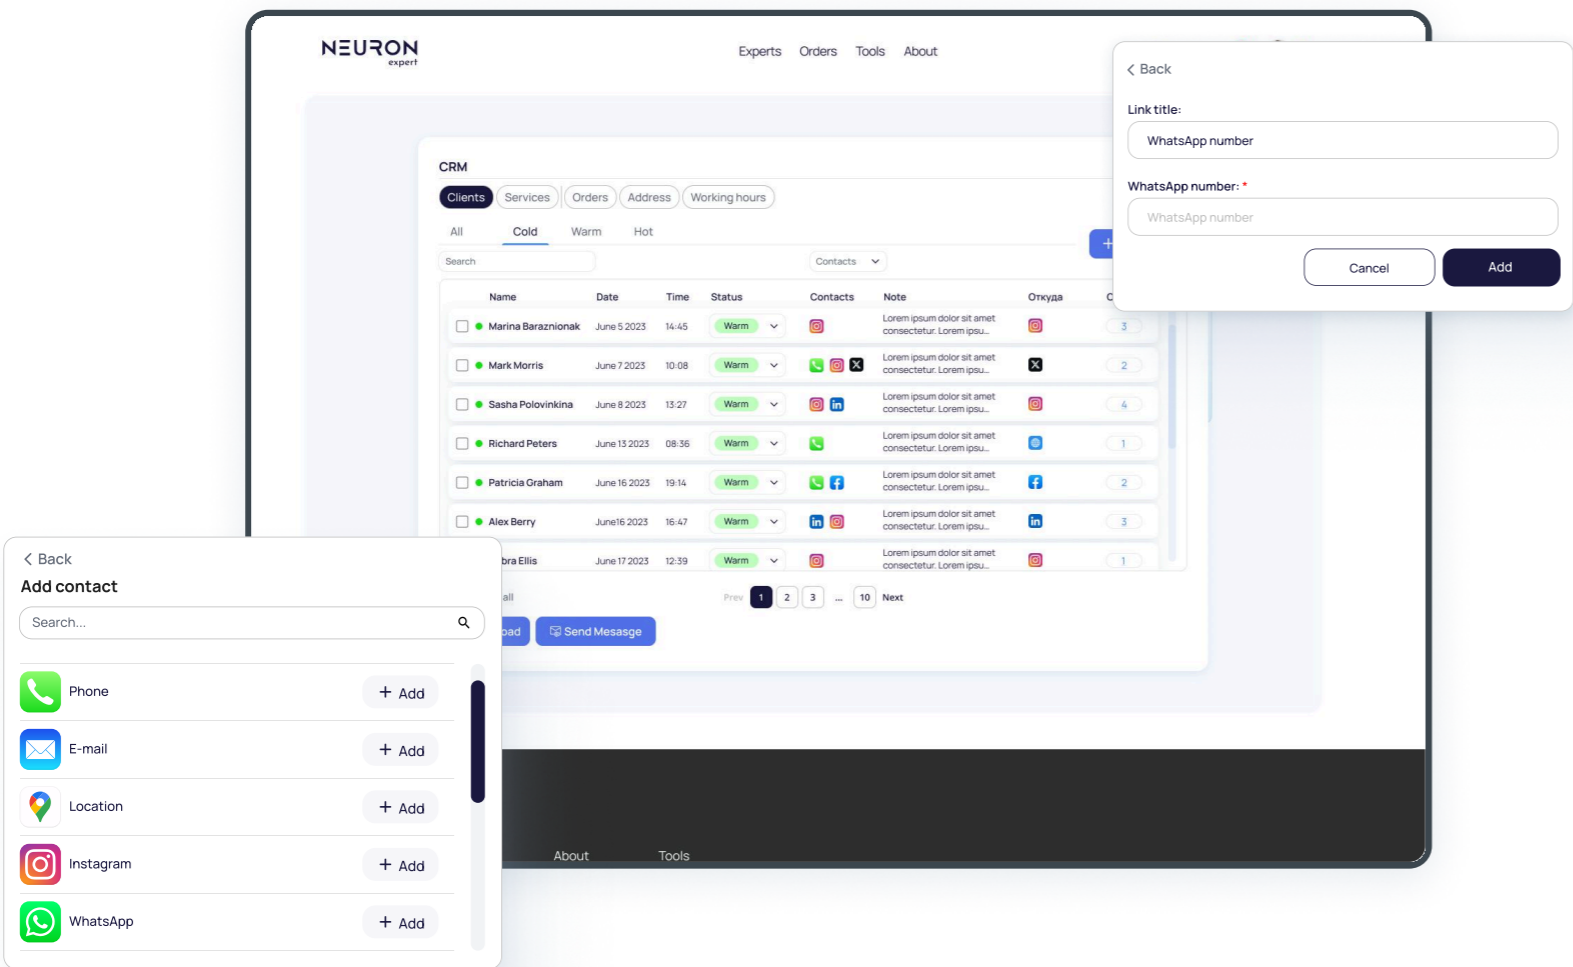

Saving history

All CRM data is used to personalize interactions. After each interaction, updated information is also recorded in the CRM, preserving a complete history of communications.

API Integration

All data from the CRM is used to personalize interactions. After each interaction, updated data is also entered into the CRM through API integration, maintaining a complete history of contacts.

Follow-up

The manager will independently remind your clients to follow up with the company by sending engaging offers through various channels.
